

CITB Site Management Safety Training Scheme (SMSTS)

In a nutshell

If you're responsible for the health and safety of everyone on-site, this course could prove invaluable. It gives you guidance on making sure all operations are carried out in accordance with current law, and looks at accountability for health, safety and welfare of employees working on site.

This course is for...

...those who want to gain up to date knowledge of current legislation and safe working practices in the built environment and construction industries

...anyone who has or is about to take on management responsibilities

...understanding your legal responsibilities relevant to your work activities

...those looking to progress from the Site Supervision Safety Training Scheme (SSSTS)
